Worried About Home Security? You're Not Alone.

How often do you worry about your home security? If it's once a month or more, you're in good company. According to a new Alarm.com study of 10,000 US homeowners' security concerns and routines, two-thirds of all homeowners worry about home security and crime at least once a month. 42% experience worries once a week or more, while 16% worry about security every day. If this sounds like you, DTC can help.

When it comes to protecting your home, home security from DTC is the reliable way to keep your family safe and worries at bay.

Home Security Mistakes Are Easy to Make

When you're managing work, family and a home, everyday details are easy to forget. Alarm.com research shows that, all too often, this includes safety and security basics. When was the last time you left your home vulnerable to an opportunistic intruder? According to Alarm.com, 35% of homeowners have left doors open or unlocked in the last 12 months. A simple security mistake can be costly. The good news is that it's easily preventable. If you lead a busy life, it's worth investing in a security system with automated locks and Geo-Services. If you forget to lock up, you'll know - and it's easy to fix.

There's No Leaving Your Home Security Worries at Home

Ever get halfway to work and had the feeling that you didn't lock your door? You're not the only one. The morning commute sees increased security concerns, especially once the rush to get out of the house has passed. However, it's not the only "prime time" for worries. According to Alarm.com's survey, 50% of homeowners worry more when they travel. While the "out of sight, out of mind" approach can work with lesser concerns, security worries require the opposite. It's why connected home security technology, with features like activity notifications and smarter video alerts, is becoming a must-have home improvement.

You Don't Have to Navigate Home Security Alone

Smart home security technology is overtaking traditional measures and increasing homeowners' peace of mind. The homeowners most likely to feel "very confident" about security are the 26% of respondents who reported owning a security system with a mobile app.

For the best-in-class protection with proactive safeguards and easy mobile controls, choose smart home security powered by Alarm.com delivered by the professionals at DTC to ensure you're not alone when it comes to protecting your home. Service packages start as low as $14.99/month with 0% financing on equipment. Contact our business office today for more information at 607-746-1500 .
